

STATE & LEA REPRESENTATIVES:

Why attend the 2026 Student Data Privacy Consortium (SDPC) & Unity Convening?

Participate to shape the future of education data by advancing open standards that prioritize interoperability, embed privacy by design, and align with real-world policy needs. This is your chance to lead collaborative innovation, influence technical frameworks, and ensure student data is used responsibly and effectively.

The 2026 SDPC & Unity Convening is a strategic opportunity to shape the future of education data through robust, privacy-aware standards. Here's why your participation matters:

Drive the Evolution of Open Data Standards

Interoperability with Integrity: Collaborate on frameworks that ensure seamless data exchange while embedding privacy protections at every layer.

Standards That Reflect Reality: Influence the development of technical specifications that align with policy, compliance, and the practical needs of schools and districts.

Embed Privacy into Every Layer of Data Design

Privacy by Design Principles: Help define standards that prioritize student data protection from the ground up, ensuring ethical use across platforms and vendors.

Policy-Driven Technical Alignment: Work with peers to ensure that evolving legislation is reflected in the standards that govern educational data systems.

Collaborate Across the Ecosystem

Cross-Sector Engagement: Join forces with educators, technologists, vendors, and policymakers to co-create standards that serve diverse needs while maintaining a unified privacy-first approach.

Community-Led Innovation: Lead or participate in sessions under the theme "Charting The Future: Privacy, People & the Power of Unity," contributing to the collective advancement of responsible data practices.

Lead with Purpose and Precision

Strategic Standards Visioning: Help chart a course for future data frameworks that support equity, transparency, and learner empowerment.

Shared Values Platform: Align with a community committed to improving education through standards that balance innovation with accountability.
